CASE STUDY

Name: Mani

Age: 65

Place of Birth: Kollem, Kerala

In his early years, Mani studied at a local school. He decided to leave after fifth standard, because he was beaten by a teacher. From the age of 12, he earned money for his family, working as a labourer on construction sites. When he reached 25, Mani wanted to marry Valli, a woman whom he cared deeply for. However, because of a difference in their respective castes his parents were against the marriage. They chose another bride for him, but Mani told them that the only person he would marry was Valli. For his persistence to stay true to his heart he was thrown out of the house, and forced to live alone.

After three years there was reconciliation between Mani and his family, and he was allowed to marry Valli. Their first child, a son died at 1 year old from a fever. One and a half years later the couple had another child, a daughter. Their family life was a happy one, but six years later, Valli suffered a heart attack and passed away. Choosing not to marry again, Mani raised his daughter on his own and supported her through education until she was sixteen. She then married, and later had two children.

There was a period of contentment, but this was shattered one day whilst Mani was working in Kollem. He had been doing any work available in the city for a daily wage, but this abruptly ended when his leg was broken in a car accident. He was hospitalised for two weeks, but he did not recover his health and due to poor health was no longer able to work. A Help Age India official found out about Mani's situation whilst he was in hospital, and offered him a place to stay in Tamaraiikulam. As he did not wish to be a burden for his daughter and her family, Mani accepted this invitation and joined the Elders Village in 2010.

When he first arrived, Mani was experiencing severe heart problems, and had chronic tuberculosis. He was treated in a private hospital which was paid for by Help Age India. He was then moved to a government run health centre in Kabbarhills. Mani was to stay there for a total six months. At first he felt wretched about his fate, and alone in his suffering. However, the other Elders from the village came to visit Mani. A Ms. Lakshmi and Mr Vadivel in particular were regular visitors. They brought him small gifts, and words of support and encouragement. Over time, Mani's outlook on life began to change. After six months, and he left the hospital, his health recovered, and with a purpose to his life.

Now, when anyone in Tamaraiikulam is ill, Mani will do his utmost to help them. He will stay with them in their residence and do things to make their lives easier. For this reason he has moved houses three times so far. The three Elders he has helped most are Mr.Godandapani, Srinivasan, and Sundarpall. When they or anyone else is to go to hospital, Mani is always willing to accompany them there. In addition, he is the only person from the village who will keep them company overnight there. "The people of Elders village" he says, "are like a family to me". A very spiritual man, Mani prays regularly, and likes to sing religious songs that he learned from listening to the radio. The latest chapter in his life is one he is still adjusting to, but despite occasional painful flashbacks, he is very happy to be here and he summarises his current situation as follows:

"This life is a journey; now I am in a peaceful state where I can dedicate myself to God
